Study and Collaboration Space

The Holden University Center is a very unique space that encourages collaboration and connectivity. The entire building is wireless and features the latest technologies to provide a truly innovative teaching and learning experience.

Students can utilize any of the rooms that are not being occupied in the building. There are many spaces ideal for smaller groups or when your large group needs to divide to work on assignments. Students may also use the Shared Media Rooms which allow multiple laptops to be displayed allowing participants to contribute their ideas quickly and seamlessly.

Technology Highlights

Walkstations: Two Walkstations (treadmills with computers) are available with top speed of two miles per hour allowing you to walk while you work! Research shows that people can lose about 30 pounds per year by using these Walkstations regularly. The Walkstations are located on the second floor.

Huddleboards: Grab one of our lightweight, portable, and versatile Huddleboards (whiteboards on wheels). Huddleboards can be hung from the top rail of the classroom whiteboards or from the silver posts and beams in our collaboration spaces.

Copy Cam: Small workgroups often yield big ideas, so no one wants to slow down idea generation with tedious note-taking. A CopyCam can take a picture of huddleboards and the image can be saved to a flash drive or the public web address posted on each CopyCam main frame in each room. CopyCams are located throughout the University Center and can photograph up to three huddleboards at a time.
