

The Bachelor of Science in Allied Health (BSAH) at Bowling Green State University (BGSU) is an online degree completion program for individuals with an associate degree in accredited allied health programs and medical fields. The BSAH program provides a baccalaureate education for students with a technical background and provides the tools needed for problem-solving, computing, communication and most importantly how to effectively apply those skills in the health care system. Of the 30 fastest-growing occupations in the labor market, more than half are in the allied health care field. This is the perfect program for allied health professionals who are interested in becoming supervisors, allied health instructors at community colleges or applying to graduate school.
