HEALTH INFORMATION
MANAGEMENT TECHNOLOGY

A career with no direct patient care.

The health information management field combines business and healthcare and does not require patient care. These professionals typically work Monday-Friday and may have work from home opportunities.

What you'll learn to do:

- » Medical coding - Assign codes to patient charts
- » Medical records and electronic health records - Use health technology to assign codes using encoder software
- » Healthcare data analysis - Apply knowledge about the revenue cycle that is used in the health industry, by health insurance agencies, and more.

How long does it take to complete this program and be job-ready?

- » 65 credits (2 years)
- » Program starts fall semester of each year.

Credential

Lakeland's health information graduates are eligible to take the national certification exam to become a Registered Health Information Technician, known as a RHIT.
